On January 1, 2013 the new South Central Ohio Job and Family Services (SCOJFS) agency began operations. The multi-county agency resulted from the merger of Hocking, Ross, and Vinton counties. Staff and commissioners from all three counties worked together for two and a half years to make the merger possible. The new shared service agency provides all the same services as any other county agency, while maximizing resources to more efficiently use Ohio's taxpayers dollars.

For some data categories, datasets for each county in the SCO agency will be displayed. Their combined totals, where mathematically possible, are shown in the 'SCO' column of the data category.
