What If Statements

What If...

- ❖ Every child grew up in a safe, nurturing and stable environment?
- ❖ All children were valued and engaged in their communities?
- ❖ All children experienced supportive relationships that encouraged and cultivated their dreams?
- ❖ All parents were supported and provided with the skills and resources they need?
- ❖ We all made a commitment to help families and children before intervention becomes necessary?

Approach

In transforming the Children's Trust Fund into Ohio's leader and authority on child maltreatment prevention, the 2009 – 2014 strategic plan incorporates three critical areas: child maltreatment as a public health problem, promoting protective factors, and investing in evidence informed practices. In addition, the 2009–2014 strategic plan shifts the Ohio Children's Trust Fund from focusing solely on funding prevention programs to prioritizing increased attention to consumer education, social marketing, and public policy initiatives.

Child maltreatment as a public health problem:

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has identified child maltreatment as a serious public health problem. The CDC's social ecological model favors multi-faceted approaches to the prevention of child maltreatment – addressing not only the individual child or family's risk factors, but also the norms, beliefs, and social and economic systems that create the conditions for child maltreatment to occur.

To this end, the OCTF strategic plan includes a continuum of activities that address multiple levels of the model with the end goal of providing developmentally appropriate programming across the life span and sustaining holistic prevention efforts.

Promoting Protective Factors:

The Ohio Children’s Trust Fund will develop a framework for child abuse and neglect prevention that promotes a more thorough understanding of how building protective factors , in addition to reducing risk factors, can reduce maltreatment for young children and their families.

Promoting the protective factors allows programs and providers to promote healthy child development and reduce the incidence of child abuse and neglect. This universal approach is effective in strengthening families long before risks of child abuse or neglect emerge.

Evidence Informed:

The Ohio Children’s Trust Fund will ensure effectiveness within Ohio’s prevention network by investing in evidence of effectiveness that integrates professional experience and expertise in the context of families' culture, characteristics, and values with scientifically rigorous methodology. The Trust Fund will build the capacity for the “science of evidence” by partnering with federal and state entities on evaluation, needs assessments and logic modeling.
