OFFICE OF FAMILY ASSISTANCE

SUBJECT: Federal Tax Credits and Free Tax Filing Assistance

Tax season is quickly approaching and we are taking this opportunity to provide updated information on available federal tax credits. Working families served by the county departments of job and family services could benefit significantly from these tax credits. These tax credits reduce the tax burden on workers, supplement wages and provide a work incentive. Below is a brief description of several tax credits available:

Earned Income Tax Credit

Earned income tax credit (EITC) is a refundable tax credit for people with low-to moderate incomes. The tax credit is based on a percentage of the employee's earned income and workers can receive a portion of the basic EITC added to each paycheck received during the year or claim the amount by filing a federal income tax return.

In order to qualify for the EITC, families must include the following:

- At least one qualifying child under the age of 19;
- A full-time student under age 24 who lived with the worker for more than half of the year; or
- A child of any age with a total and permanent disability.

The tax credit available to eligible families varies depending on the number of qualifying children and income:

- Families with one qualifying child who earned less than $37,870 (or less than $43,210 if married filing jointly) in 2013 may be able to take a credit of up to $3,250.
- Families with two qualifying children who earned less than $43,038 (or less than $48,378 if married filing jointly) in 2013 may be able to take a credit of up to $5,372.

An Equal Opportunity Employer and Service Provider

- Families with three or more qualifying children who earned less than $46,227 (or less than $51,567 if married filing jointly) in 2013 may be able to take a credit of up to $6,044.
- Workers between the ages of 25 to 64 on December 31, 2013, without a qualifying child in their home who earned less than $14,340 (or less than $19,680 if married filing jointly) in 2013 may be able to take a credit of up to $487.

For purposes of EITC and the Child Tax Credit, “qualifying child” means: sons, daughters, stepchildren, grandchildren, adopted children, brothers, sisters, stepbrothers, or stepsisters as well as descendants of such relatives and foster children who are placed with the worker by an authorized government or private placement agency.

Many legal immigrants who are employed can qualify for the EITC as long as they meet the other eligibility requirements.

Child Tax Credit

The Child Tax Credit is a credit for taxpayers raising at least one qualifying child. Very low income families will now qualify for this credit.

In order to qualify for the Child Tax Credit, families must have:

- At least one qualifying child under the age of 17 who lived with the worker for more than half of the year; and
- Have taxable income above $3,000 to receive a credit of up to $1000 per qualifying child.

Child and Dependent Care Credit

A family may be able to claim the federal Child and Dependent Care Credit if the wage earner paid someone to care for a qualifying dependent that is under age 13 or a spouse or dependent that is not able to care for him or herself who lived with the family for more than half of the year. For the year 2013, parents can claim as much as $3,000 in dependent care expenses per child (up to $6,000 for two or more children) depending on income.

To claim the Child and Dependent Care Credit the tax filer must have earned income during the year. In addition, the child care expenses must be work related, in that they are paid to permit the wage earner to work or look for work. Families earning too little to pay federal income tax cannot use this credit.

American Opportunity Tax Credit

The American Opportunity Tax Credit can make education more affordable for low-income families and students who might not otherwise be able to attend college. The American Opportunity Tax Credit is available for students who meet the following requirements:

- Are in their first four years of college, enrolled at least half-time, and pursuing an undergraduate degree;

- Have paid for “qualified educational expenses” such as tuition (after tax-free contributions) and course-related materials for themselves, spouse or dependents; and
- Have adjusted gross income in 2013 of less than $80,000 or $160,000 if married.

Impact on Public Assistance

Any refund received because of these tax credits will not be used to determine an individual’s eligibility for Ohio Works First; Prevention, Retention and Contingency Programs; Food Assistance; Disability Financial Assistance; Refugee Cash Assistance; Medicaid; child care benefits; Supplemental Security Income or low-income housing. The total amount of a refund received after December 31, 2013, is disregarded as income for purposes of determining eligibility for benefits or assistance in all federal programs or any state or local program financed in whole or in part by federal dollars. In addition, amounts saved from the tax refunds are not counted toward resource limits in public benefit programs for 12 months after the refund is received.

Outreach material

The Ohio Department of Job and Family Services (ODJFS) will be mailing out a notice to all current Ohio Works First (OWF) recipients and Food Assistance recipients with earnings informing them of the tax credits and how to get assistance in filing their returns in early February. An example of this notice is attached and a CRIS-E bulletin will be issued when the mailings begin. Participants in the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) subsidized employment program will likely be eligible for these tax credits. County agencies may also want to conduct direct outreach to former and current participants to inform them of the credits and the availability of the free tax assistance.

The “Money Talks! Community Outreach Kit” is a packet of materials that is available from the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities. It is a valuable tool for organizations to inform communities and families about the federal tax credit opportunities and free low-income tax preparation assistance. In addition to tax credit outreach materials, the kit includes easy-to-read fact sheets on all of the credits; posters and envelope stuffers in English and Spanish; and flyers in many languages. Counties may request or download a free copy of this kit by accessing the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities website at <http://eitcoutreach.org>
