Title XX
Day Treatment
For Children

This service is designed for providing treatment for a portion of the day for children who manifest primarily emotional, psychological, behavioral, or social problems which cannot be resolved in a non-specialized educational or developmental setting, or in specialized settings such as learning or behavioral disabilities classes. While these children may be able to live at home or in substitute care, their needs are such that their daily activities must be a part of a treatment environment.

The treatment of children involves specialized clinical services required for diagnosis, treatment, and consultation in providing help for pathological conditions, personality services, as distinguished from other parts of the programs, are provided by staff with professional or technical training for helping the child and parents (or caretakers with whom the child is living) directly through such activities as individual and family prescription drugs, and art and music therapy.

Service components include training activities, special educational activities, social and recreational activities, health services, personal and social interaction skill development, activity therapies, community participation activities, and transportation. These services are integral but subordinate to treatment, which is the purpose of the child's receiving the services. These services are to be offered as an integral program; however, the various components may be delivered through different sources.

The daily activities, including individual and group program components and treatment services prescribed for the individual child, must be coordinated and integrated into an individual goal-directed treatment plan for the child. The plan must delineate a predictable measurable impact on the child's problem assessment of the progress of the plan (i.e., a formal staffing including all necessary parties to review goal attainment and to arrive at a decision of:

- a) continuing the plan;
- b) revising the plan; or
- c) terminating the placement) which must be completed every six months for the total period of treatment.

Federal financial participation is not available for:

- a) Educational services which residents of Ohio usually receive free from a public agency. If provided, services must be integrated, but subordinate to, the provision of this section.

b) Any activities related to the provision of Ohio Works First (OWF).

- 716 Title XX Counseling Services Services or activities that apply therapeutic processes to personal, family, situational, or occupational problems to bring about a positive resolution of the problem or improved individual or family functioning or circumstances.
- 719 Title XX Foster Care Services For Adults Services or activities that assess the need and arrange for the substitute care and alternate living situation of adults in a setting suitable to the individual's needs. Individuals may need such services because of social, physical or mental disabilities, or because of abuse or neglect. Care that may be provided in a community-based setting or such services may arrange for institutionalization when necessary. Title XX TANF
For Children

This service is designed for the basic purpose of providing treatment for a portion of the day for children who manifest primarily emotional, psychological, behavioral, or social problems which cannot be resolved in a non-specialized educational or developmental setting, or in specialized settings such as learning or behavioral disabilities classes. While these children may be able to live at home or in substitute care, their needs are such that their daily activities must be a part of a treatment environment.

The treatment of children involves specialized clinical services required for diagnosis, treatment, and consultation in providing help for pathological conditions, personality services, as distinguished from other parts of the programs, are provided by staff with professional or technical training for helping the child and parents (or caretakers with whom the child is living) directly through such activities as individual and family prescription drugs, and art and music therapy.

Service components include training activities, special educational activities, social and recreational activities, health services, personal and social interaction skill development, activity therapies, community participation activities, and transportation. These services are integral but subordinate to treatment, which is the purpose of the child's receiving the services. These services are to be offered as an integral program; however, the various components may be delivered through different sources.

The daily activities, including individual and group program components and treatment services prescribed for the individual child, must be coordinated and integrated into an individual goal directed treatment plan for the child. The plan must delineate a predictable measurable impact on the child's problem assessment of the progress of the plan (i.e., a formal staffing including all necessary parties to review goal attainment and to arrive at a decision of:

- a) continuing the plan;
- b) revising the plan; or
- c) terminating the placement) which must be completed every six months for the total period of treatment.

Federal financial participation is not available for:

- a) Educational services which residents of Ohio usually receive free from a public agency. If provided, services must be integrated, but subordinate to, the provision of this section.
- b) Any activities related to the provision of Ohio Works First (OWF).
